How To...Manual

by Dirk Wagner

<http://IMO-eCourses.com>

The software itself is self-explaining but I think I have to give you some instructions how to customize the landing page and of course before I forget it...the branding tool. ;-)

When you unzipped the downloaded file (I assume you already did so otherwise you wouldn't read this manual) you now find some folders.

Let's begin with the folder called "templates". In this folder you'll find all templates, the landing page and the registration page.

I'll give you now all customization instruction for each of the listed pages, one by one.

Landing Page:

In the landing page folder you'll find several other folders.

Direct download link version:

This version of a landing page doesn't require your visitors to fill out a form to receive your branded copy of the software. They only have to click the download button at your landing page and can store the software instantly on their PC.

Now you may ask how this solution will help you to build a list? Just create a software version which requires a registration code which means when your visitors open the downloaded software it will ask them for a registration code. If they don't have one it will redirect them to your registration page which is part of this DFY package you bought from me. More about the DFY registration pages later.

When opening the direct download link folder you'll find the folder "1" which contains all files which you have to upload later to your server after customization. Here are the two values you'll have to replace with your data (again just open the file index.html using your favorite text editor or html editor.):

YOUR COMPANY NAME

This is the copyright notice at the bottom of the page. Just replace it with your company name or your real name. It is up to you.

YourDownloadLinkComesHere

Here you have to replace this text with your complete download link of the branded software i.e.

<http://www.yourdomain.com/folder/software.zip>

PHP Version

I've decided to make it as easy as possible for you to add your autoresponder code to the landing pages. For this reason I created the landing pages as PHP versions and not HTML. In a minute you'll know why...

This PHP version solution allows you to add your own autoresponder code simply by adding it to an empty text file. That's it. ;-)

When you open the PHP folder again you'll see the folder "1". The problem with PHP files is that you cannot double click them that the browser will show you its content. There is a small workaround for you if you want to check out which design suits best for your marketing plans...just switch back to the direct download link version and check each version from there in your browser since this version uses HTML files. The styles of this version are the same as the ones from the PHP version i.e. folder "1" of the direct download link version shows the same style like folder "1" of the PHP version.

Landing Page (index.php)

YOUR COMPANY NAME

Replace this word combination with your own name or company name. It is displayed below the form next to the copyright symbol.

autoresponder.txt

You'll find this file in the "images" folder. It is empty so just open it and paste your created autoresponder code to it. That's it.

Tip:

When creating the autoresponder code just use two form fields (name, email or only email) and choose a transparent background.

Registration Page (reg.php)

YOUR COMPANY NAME

It's the same process you already have done at the landing page file. Replace these words with your name or company name.

registration.txt

You'll find this file in the "images" folder. It is empty so just open it and paste your created autoresponder code to it. That's it.

Tip:

When creating the autoresponder code just use two form fields (name, email or only email) and choose a transparent background.

When branding the software and choosing the registration requirement option you have to choose any random code i.e. ABCD-1234-EFGH-5678 or simply 123456789. It is up to you what you choose...it is only important that you provide the registration code to your users of the software when they requested the code by filling out the form. Otherwise they cannot run the software and will send you complaints. More about the branding options later in this manual.

That's all you have to customize when using any of the provided landing pages and/or registration pages. After finishing the customization just upload all files to any of your domains and start promoting your landing page in any way you like.

I've added a shortcut to the download page of the free FTP tool Filezilla to the folder, in case you have no FTP tool installed on your PC.

In case you decide to offer a software version with registration code requirement you have to choose any random code i.e. ABCD-1234-EFGH-5678 or simply 123456789. It is up to you what you choose...it is only important that you provide the registration code to your users of the software when they requested the code by filling out the form otherwise they won't be able to run the software.

REGISTER URL is the location you uploaded the customized registration landing page to which I mentioned in chapter 1 of this manual. It is important that you add a valid path here otherwise users will see a “page not found” message when clicking the “Don’t Have A Key?” button (screenshot below>).

As soon as they paste the correct registration key and their email address the software will be unlocked and your users can enjoy the software.

Please Note: If you get asked to enter this every time you start the software it is because the permissions given to this program are not high enough. Try right clicking the program icon and choosing "run as administrator".

That was the branding part of this manual. I hope I explained everything understandable. If you still have any questions you surely can contact me here and I will be glad to help you out. Of course you can use the link also for sending me a testimonial in case you like my software. I would appreciate it very much and use your testimonial for my soon upcoming next software series.
